Incident Management Response and Disaster Recovery

Course No 224

It is essential for every organisation not only to have an incidence response manual but also to keep it updated following any major changes in the organisation. The crucial part in having an effective incident response in case of a cyber-attack is to ensure that all key personnel are aware and confident of the contents of this manual. This course will provide attendees with a clear picture of the importance of an incident management and response procedure. The aim is to help participants focus on prevention and detection alike together with the importance of disaster recovery strategies and individual roles.

Attendees will be able to draw up, review and enhance their incident response manual and be prepared to handle an incident and co-ordinate the CSIRT team. They will also understand the various methodologies of disaster recovery and their role in the process in case of an event.
